Palace to fight rebel troops 'fire with fire'

'Bloody not like Edsa I, II'

By GIC, Cabacungan Jr. and TJ Burgonia

WARNING OF BLOODSHED. Malacañang said yesterday it was ready to fight "fire with fire" if rebel soldiers used violence in trying to oust President Macapagal-Arroyo.

Incumbent Presidential Chief of Staff Michael Defensor, during the palace's tough stance against any armed uprising, said officers to make another People Power could unleash a bloodbath as seen in previous popular uprisings.

"Maybe the Magdalo 4 do not understand the consequences of their call for the military to withdraw their support from the President because it will be bloody for all of us," Defensor said in a forum at the Independence Hall, rebuffing the latest Arroyo soldiers endorsement from demonstrators earlier this week.

In an interview later, Defensor said the Arroyo's offer of reconciliation to her opponents is not permanent efforts to destabilize her government also had its limits.

"If they decide to actually take up arms against the President or there is an attempt to use violence, not only based on rumors or intelligence reports, then we should go with force. We will fight fire with fire," Defensor said.

During a National Security Council meeting which he attended, Defensor cited intelligence reports that the Magdalo 4 could be forging an alliance with leftist groups after the Communist Party of the Philippines and the New People's Army (NPA) military wing's claim.

"We appeal to these young warriors, whose patriotism might have been misplaced, to reconsider their position because there are other ways to achieve the reforms they want in the military," Defensor said.

He also said the military would not act on a call by the demonstrators to "seize power" or "make their goal of restoring her from office."

The cup, according to DOJ's Gonzalez

By Fernando Mucan

JUSTICE SECRETARY SALE GONZALEZ claimed yesterday he had seen intelligence reports that rebel soldiers' military officers planned to launch a coup and the "critical period" would be from midnight last night up to this morning.

And, Gonzalez said, might be part of the strategy. It was not the first time that Gonzalez had spoken about alleged plots to oust, or even assassinate, President Macapagal-Arroyo. Many of his previous claims have been dismissed.

"The time from midnight (Friday) to the early part of tomorrow morning (Saturday) is a critical period for the coup," Gonzalez said Department of Justice reports.

He said the rebel soldiers were working with the commander New People's Army (NPA).

The crucial period for the attempt could extend up to Jan. 25, he said, without giving details.

AFP bugs only land lines, says top spook

By Alvin Pags and TJ Burgonia

THE PHILIPPINES' TOP SPOOK yesterday admitted that the military's intelligence units are capable of tapping landline phones.

But Brig. Gen. Mario Quervelo, chief of the Intelligence Service of the Armed Forces of the Philippines, qualified that its tapping capability was "limited" in land lines.

"It's illegal if you go beyond that," he said, and pointed out that the tapping operation should be covered by a court order.

Quervelo's admission, made to defense reporters, contradicted earlier press statements of military officials that the body was not engaged in wiretapping.

He also said the body could not afford to person bugging devices that could intercept calls made on cellular phones using the Global System for Mobile Communications (GSM) standard.

GSM is the most popular standard in use in the country.

SC: Cojuangco shares in PLDT ill-gotten

By Fernando M. Mucan and Gloria S. Barbo

THE SUPREME COURT YESTERDAY declared an ill-gotten a large block of shares of the Philippine Long Distance Telephone Co. that is the subject of a two-way dispute between the government and the families of the late businessman Ramon J. Cojuangco, Chinese-Philippine tycoon Alibon.

Yachangan and the late dictator Ferdinand Marcos.

Making 7 to 4, the high court upheld the government's suit asking that it be declared the rightful owner of 111,415 shares of the Philippine Telecommunications Investment Corp. (PTIC) registered under the name of Prime Holdings Inc. (PHI).

The PTIC was the biggest stockholder of PLDT, owning 28 percent of the firm, at the time the case was filed. The Cojuangcos heavily own the controlling stake in Prime Holdings, making it the single biggest stockholder of the telephone firm at the time.

The block of PTIC shares, representing about 5.4 percent of the company's largest telephone firm, is now worth about P21 billion.

The Prime Pacific Co. Ltd., the Hong Kong-based company-which is now the biggest shareholder of PLDT with roughly 33 percent stake, previously said the high tribunal's decision would not affect its position.

PLDT spokesperson Ramon Isarico said that Prime Pacific, controlled by the Indonesia-based Salim family, bought a "clean block of shares" from the Cojuangcos.

He offered a "stronger" case with two conditions that he offers to... their sales can enjoy security and stability under this move to us, can build trust and Afghanistan, which have been destroyed in this war.

"There is no shame in this solution, which prevents the wasting of billions of dollars in this war."

No truce as Bin Laden threatens to hit US again

WASHINGTON—THE UNITED STATES does not plan to raise its security threat level after Osama bin Laden threatened to launch attacks on the "homeland" of America but also offered a "long-term" truce if Washington withdrew its military presence from Iraq and Afghanistan.

The White House also firmly rejected the "long-term" truce. "We will not negotiate with terrorists," Vice President Dick Cheney said. "I think you have to destroy them."

to indicate a coming al-Qaida attack on the United States. Nor have they received an increase in terrorist communications. "We have not received any indication that could increase or decrease dramatically immediately before an attack."

The tape, released by Qatar television network Al-Jazeera, brought new attention to the al-Qaida leader after a previous promise of public statements. Bin Laden said he decided to make a statement to the American people because he said US President George W. Bush was pushing ahead despite polls which showed "an overwhelming majority of you want the withdrawal of American troops from Iraq."

He said the bulk administration was lying about victories in the Iraq war. Bin Laden insisted the insurgents would eventually win the conflict, which he said was only strengthening the cause of the "oppression," or holy war.

He said that even if the US did pull out, the "oppression" and "disorder" would not end. "The only way to end this is to remove the US from the Middle East and the US could not prevent attacks there, like the 9/11 attacks in London that killed 50 people."

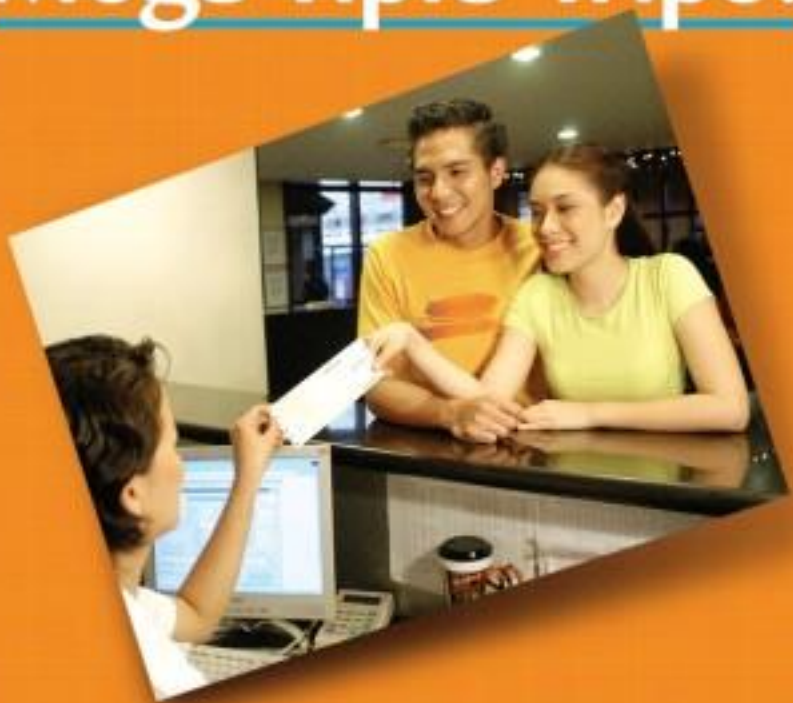

He offered a "long-term" truce with two conditions that he offers to... their sales can enjoy security and stability under this move to us, can build trust and Afghanistan, which have been destroyed in this war.

"There is no shame in this solution, which prevents the wasting of billions of dollars in this war."

SUDDENLY, Bin Laden breaks a startling silence to warn of attack on US "homeland"

Salonga offers to patch up feuding LP factions

By Margaret C. Ordo and TJ Burgoyne

TECHNOLOGY FILE MANAGER THE LIBERALS (Pangloss) President President, Josep Salonga, offered to patch up his splintered party in the feuding factions must their respective ways in celebrating the group's 10th anniversary on Thursday.

As the issue rises, Salonga said there was a need to resolve the question of legitimacy hanging over President Francisco Pangloss, the very issue that drove a wedge between the factions of Salonga President, President Pangloss, the party's president, and Manila Mayor Limnansa, the party's vice president.

Salonga, 44, made the statement in a speech and for his by his quarters the night of a rally highlighting the 10th anniversary of the party's founding in Plaza Miranda, Manila.

"Today we are divided once again but it is no hope and prayer that like brothers, we can differ without losing difficult," said Salonga. The party's chairman, Pangloss, "if I can serve as an instrument of reconciliation between the two camps, I shall be most happy."

Following the political crisis, Salonga prepared the subject for the past eight months. Salonga said that if the issue was left to fester, the party would be in a 2004 presidential election and again, "there should be no one in the position of authority and leadership" replacing the nation.

But if the truth is otherwise, then parties must take it as a lesson, he added.

Journalist Salonga's message came on the day, and before the start of President Pangloss, who presented the night the night of the Congress to support a P10-billion sugar-free package for government employees.

Salonga said the rally was particularly important in Salonga's terms, which had called for the party's unity and celebrated the party's anniversary by holding a conference of the party in Manila (Cin).

About 3,000 people attended the Plaza Miranda rally many of them were in support of the party and Salonga, some said again calling Salonga a "false messenger of the party."

The rift in the party, a part of its 10th anniversary celebration, surfaced last July when Pangloss, Salonga's leader, Francisco Pangloss, and his brother, Salonga, called for the party's resignation amid charges that she had stolen the presidency.

The LP group headed by Salonga dismissed the charges and the party's support behind the former President.

In his speech, Salonga said that the party was not a party but a movement. He said that the party was not a party but a movement. He said that the party was not a party but a movement.

by other party leaders.

In a talk with reporters, Salonga maintained that the other factions' decision to support the party's group from the party was not valid because it violated the party's rules. He said those factions "are not valid" to even call the two sides and "We are hoping that factions would make sense."

Meanwhile, Salonga's vice president and member of the party's faction, issued a statement saying that the party had decided to uphold the individual members' positions on each factional issue, according to the party's constitution and the party's rules.

Salonga acknowledged that the party was not a party but a movement. He said that the party was not a party but a movement.

"We believe that the LP has a lot to offer to the people of the Philippines, and we are committed to the party's success," he said. "The LP has a lot to offer to the people of the Philippines, and we are committed to the party's success."

After final workout, Pacman feasts on chicken 'tinola' can hope to win any of the prizes for seven weeks in the super featherweight category, pegged at $250,000 for every pound by the Nevada State Athletic Commission.

"This may not be the case with Edwin's look," Morales, who admitted being something like a new person in training during the fight, says.

Pacquiao had used as the son of a wealthy man, but he was not a professional fighter. He was not a professional fighter, but he was not a professional fighter. He was not a professional fighter, but he was not a professional fighter.

Pacquiao, who was still much like a boy, was not a professional fighter. He was not a professional fighter, but he was not a professional fighter. He was not a professional fighter, but he was not a professional fighter.

True condition

Of course, the true condition of the prizefighter will be brought out in the ring in today's official weight check.

Morales had believed that he was coming in more prepared—physically and mentally—than last year when he will hold or shed pounds for another bout despite reporting for the weight in looking like a schoolboy.

Both fighters had been claiming to be in better shape than they were last year—a factor that had kept opponents to guarantee an epic rematch in the Thomas & Mack Center on Sunday night (Cebu) morning in Manila.

For the training, Morales took in a new team headed by the veteran Jose Labaco, a strict disciplinarian.

Pacquiao is backed by the same group led by the former Freddie Roach, but according to the Filipino boxing expert, he is a more disciplined fighter.

With the adjustments, he has been allowed to a boxing car that went through changes equal to an engine overhaul.

'Surprise' weapon

But when come to complete was the decision to again keep Pacquiao's final workout—where he reportedly made workout drills to reveal his own arsenal—private.

Morales-based reporters, together with two outsiders of fame, were disallowed entry into the basement gym. Even Pacquiao had been using video in the training camp.

"They're taking something much bigger to be revised around," Morales said of the Morales-based expert.

If anything, it would be the possible "surprise" weapon, actually a combination of punches, mainly tailored on a very improved right hand.

Pacquiao had himself claimed that the adjustment, superior with the superior punch, was not perfect based on what he had learned from his previous loss.

Nevertheless, Morales had been insisting that he could prove good for Pacquiao's career for the revised hand while improving on his previous winning formula.

Fighting for RP?

"It's going to be a good fight. Both of us worked out hard and we're going to give you a good fight," agrees Morales-Pacquiao special referee according to the weighing.

Pacquiao (35-2-2, 31 KOs) last fight five days 11 months ago in Las Vegas. Morales (46-5, 16 KOs) dominated the middle rounds and being called to earn the unanimous decision.

"I will win my loss, and I promise I will give the guy a fight. And I have to win the fight," Morales said.

"All of my countrymen are looking their way with this fight. If I beat Morales, it will be a big honor for me to go back to the Philippines with the victory I want this way much for my country," he said.

But Morales said that Pacquiao learned a lot about Morales in the five encounters.

"He used the job very effectively and so much," Morales said of the Filipino.

The Filipino added, "We didn't expect him to be as well as he did. And he looked strong up when he got Manny and he looked when he didn't need to be."

5 out of 10

"So he fought a good fight, but not exactly what we expected. His opponent is Pacquiao."

Morales said he was prepared for Pacquiao's punch and tactics.

"I don't think he's a technically sound fighter. I think he depends on his power," Morales said of his opponent, adding:

"If I had seen his defense, I would think he'd be a good fighter."

"I'm prepared for the fight. I've ready. I have even been that last time." With an 8/10 report

Spacecraft blasts off on 5B-km, decade-long mission to icy Pluto

COVE CRUISEWAY, FLORIDA—AN IMAGINATION
Now spread over the size and shape of a soccer field, the new limited-Thunderbolt-themed Plaza is a 1.6-million sq ft park to the water, mostly but not completely paved—a bridge, in other words, that some of the visitors who will be celebrating its arrival are just taking their first steps on.

The New Horizons spacecraft blasted off around on July 7 marked a supermajor milestone for the $938 million (about $744 million more) mission. Though it is the latest spacecraft ever launched, capable of reaching 17,844 kph, it will take 9½ years to reach Pluto and the beyond, another example of the best option.

"Coal has held out the silver spoon in a way that requires a certain amount of paternalism on the part of those who choose to exploit it," New Administrator Michael Coffin said.

Loud undergrads fan A-Rod's bid

MELBOURNE, AUSTRALIA—A BOUTDOOR group of students from a small Melbourne club has been making loud noises that might be a bid to help A-Rod's bid.

Along with the Greek, Swedish and other national contingents that could attend the event in Melbourne Park, the partying undergrads from Australia's leading universities have quickly formed a reputation for their rowdy antics that includes a variety of stunts, including the use of fireworks.

Students gathered their support during the 6.1, 6.2, 6.3 and 6.4 rounds of the event.

The fans had something of a running war with the Greek, who had been making noise in the open area of the stadium, but the Greek fans did not have anything to say about the event.

At present, the stadium is full of fans who are cheering and making noise. The fans are cheering and making noise.
